Laotian Rivals To Begin Unity Session Today

Warring Princes Agree To Talks

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The princely chieftains of Laos' three warring factions announced Sunday they will begin a formal meeting Monday aimed at forming a government of national union.

The announcement was made after a luncheon of the three princes — pro-Western Premier Boun Oum, neutralist ex-Premier Souvanna Phouma and his pro-Communist half-brother, Souphanouvong — in Zurich's elegant Dolder Hotel.

The conference is planned to last three days. In addition to the princes, three political advisers will attend the sessions. One of them is Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, Boun Oum's deputy premier and military strongman.

The other is Quinim Pholsena, information minister in a Souvanna Phouma government that fell last December, and Thao Phoumi Vongvichit, foreign affairs specialist of Souphanouvong's Red Pathet Lao movement.

Princess Moune Souvanna Phouma, the neutralist prince's daughter, who is French educated, will act as spokesman for the group. A joint statement said the major problem of the conference is to "achieve national harmony through the formation of a government of national union."

Stevenson Acclaimed In Ecuador

QUITO, ECUADOR (UPI) — Ambassador Adlai Stevenson arrived Sunday in tension-packed Ecuador and received the largest and warmest welcome of his South American tour. Communist students had threatened major demonstrations.

An indication of the tension prevailing in the Ecuadorian capital lay in the fact that two American newsmen, Stuart Novins of CBS and Bob Linley of ABC, reported they were stoned by a crowd of 50 Castroites when they flew in Saturday night ahead of Stevenson. They were not hurt. They said the group followed them into town.

Stevenson ended a visit to Peru — described as successful despite a series of anti-American student riots — and flew first Sunday to tiny Guayaquil where 1,000 peasants massed to greet him though word of his arrival had barely preceded him.

A smaller but equally cordial welcome awaited at Quito where massive security precautions were taken against any possible disturbance as he arrived here as special representative of President Kennedy.

Japan Premier On Way To U.S.

TOKYO, MONDAY (UPI) — Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda took off for the United States and Canada Sunday to "have a frank exchange of opinions" with U.S. President John F. Kennedy and Canadian Premier John Diefenbaker.

About 2,000 police were on hand at the Tokyo International Airport to guard against threatened leftist attempts to block the premier's departure. However, there was no violence and no leftist groups showed up.

Ikeda, the third Japanese prime minister to visit the United States in the post-war years, left with his wife, Foreign Minister Zen-itaro Kosaka and a handful of other government officials aboard a scheduled Japan Airlines jet, the City of Kamakura.

At Least 32 Die In French Train Wreck

Express Derails At 80 MPH; 153 Persons Injured

VITRY-LE-FRANCOIS, France (AP) — The swift Strasbourg-Paris express jumped the rails a half mile west of this eastern French town Sunday, killing at least 32 passengers and injuring 153.

One of the 10 all-metal cars filled with passengers tumbled into a water-filled ravine and still was submerged Sunday night. Rescue workers feared the final death toll would go higher.

The victims could not be immediately identified but officials at a nearby U.S. airbase said they believed only three Americans were aboard and none was seriously injured.

The wreck was the nationalized French railway's worst disaster since November 1957 when 29 persons were killed at Chantonay. Train Going 80 MPH

The cars hurtled off the tracks as the express—one of the nation's fastest trains—flashed through the village of Loisy-sur-Marne at about 80 m.p.h. One car was dragged on its side for more than 250 yards, still coupled to the forward part of the train.

Within minutes of the accident a crowd of several hundred farmers and townspeople responded to the screams and shouts of the terrified passengers.

Ambulances from the U.S. airbase and from Vitry-le-Francois rushed victims to hospitals.

Tracks were ripped up, halting traffic in both directions on the double-track mainline linking Paris with eastern France and Germany.

Copters Remove Injured

As nightfall approached, scores of workmen, both French and American airmen, struggled with the twisted, battered cars in an effort to release anyone trapped inside.

American drivers from the base brought up motor cars to form a huge square and turned on all the headlights to create an improvised landing field for helicopters to take out the seriously injured.

The entire personnel of the base, which includes the headquarters unit of the 77th Medical Depot, volunteered for rescue work and blood donations.

Space Capsule Is Recovered

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — A capsule from the Discoverer XXV satellite was successfully recovered from orbit Sunday after being in space two days.

It was the fifth capsule to be recovered.

The capsule — ejected from the 25-foot long satellite whirling 250 miles over the North Pole at 18,000 miles an hour — fell north of the planned recovery area.

But a waiting C119 cargo plane piloted by Capt. Warren C. Schensted, 32, Glenwood, Minn., saw the capsule land in the water of the Pacific near Hawaii.

He radioed for a specially-equipped SC54 airplane carrying skindivers. The divers parachuted to the capsule and hauled it aboard a life boat.

The Air Force said an amphibious plane was en route to pick up the divers and the instrument-filled capsule.

The capsule was hurled into orbit from his middle California coastal base Friday, riding inside the Agena B satellite which stayed in orbit Sunday after the pack was ejected back to earth.

The companies insist the practice is necessary in order to compete with European vessels.

Striking Ship Union Offers To Negotiate

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Maritime Union offered Sunday to negotiate singly or in any combination with any of the 74 companies involved in the maritime strike.

NMU President Joseph Curran said his union of 37,000 members was willing to do that if the companies will make "a positive response to our economic proposal."

"Nobody has done any bargaining for them up to now," the union leader's statement said.

The American Merchant Marine Institute and the Tanker Labor Service Committee have been representing the companies in the three-coast tripartite.

A union spokesman indicated the statement was prompted by several inquiries about bargaining by individual companies.

Ralph E. Casey, president of the marine institute, dismissed Curran's offer as an "obvious effort to divide and conquer our group."

Curran Saturday threatened to file unfair labor charges against the marine institute.

He said Casey had failed to bargain in good faith and would not discuss economic points until the union eliminates its foreign flag issue.

That issue has caused almost a complete impasse in peace talks to end the three-day strike that involves 85,000 crewmen, seven unions and almost 1,000 passenger, freight and oil vessels.

The unions want the right to represent crews of American-owned vessels flying foreign flags. Both sides traded bitter words as the talks broke up Saturday.

The NMU said it was working with other unions to see there is no delay in handling military cargoes.

Although the strike's effects have been small so far, several trade associations already have appealed to the government to take more vigorous action to halt it.

The unions contend that American seamen are being deprived of jobs by the practice of foreign crews being hired by American-owned vessels flying foreign flags.

Wage scales on such ships are lower than on American flag vessels.

The companies insist the practice is necessary in order to compete with European vessels.

Committee Would Mete Out U.N. Jobs On Population Basis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A committee of experts is proposing that population be taken as an added criterion in dividing U.N. jobs among the 99 member countries, diplomats said Sunday.

This would be part of a revised system the committee recommends as a means of instituting a new deal all around and stop grumbling from the Soviet Union and others who say their citizens don't get enough U.N. jobs.

Each country's share of the more than 1,300 professional jobs now depends entirely on the share it pays of the U.N.'s annual budgeted expenses, which in turn depends on its per capita income. The United States, paying most by far, ranks first.

The most populous among U.N. members is India, with about 400 million people.

Diplomats who saw advance copies of the committee's report, expected to be made public Monday, June 26, said the system would work like this:

1. Each member country would start with two U.N. jobs for its citizens.

2. It would pick up one more job for each 10 million people up to the 100-million mark; one more for each 30 million above that to another cutoff point, and so on up the scale.

3. It would get other posts in proportion to the percentage it pays of the total annual budget assessments.

The object is to meet a requirement in the U.N. Charter that U.N. employees be recruited on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

The net result would favor poor nations at the expense of rich ones, and put a premium on big populations.

The informants said seven of the eight committees agreed on the recommendation. They reported the eighth, a Russian, argued that the U.N. jobs should be split evenly among Communist, neutralist and Western-aligned countries.

On the question of how to reorganize the U.N. Secretariat, the informants added, the committee split three ways:

1. Ghana, India and the United Arab Republic favored instituting a new second level of deputy secretaries general and hiring three of them, to represent "the prevailing views in the world today."

2. Britain, Colombia, France and the United States favored such a new second level but wanted to hire seven deputies, recruited on a geographical rather than a political basis.

3. The Soviet Union stuck to Premier Khrushchev's plan to replace Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld with three executive secretaries representing the three political persuasions, with each wielding a veto.

Ex-Sen. Bender, Colorful Ohio Politician, Dies

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. George H. Bender died at his home in suburban Chagrin Falls Sunday. He was 64.

Death was attributed to a coronary thrombosis. The death of the colorful politician was sudden, but he had been in and out of hospitals several times in the past year.

For almost 20 years he had served as Republican leader in Cuyahoga County (Cleveland), but his political star declined in recent years.

Bender was a strong supporter of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, his fellow Ohioan. He supported Taft in his unsuccessful bid for the GOP presidential nomination in 1952.

Bender grabbed a cowbell at the Chicago convention and sang hoarsely to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" the words: "Taft for me, and Taft for you; Taft will win in '52."

Bender was seated in the Senate in 1954, to fill out two years of the unexpired term of Taft. By a narrow margin, he had beat out former Cleveland Mayor and U.S. Sen. Thomas A. Burke for the final years of Taft's term. But Bender was beaten in 1956 by Frank J. Lausche, then governor of Ohio who still is serving in the Senate.

Young Rioters Battle Police, Smash Windows

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) — A howling mob of young people battled police and smashed store windows Saturday night in a riotous outbreak capping a day of sports car racing.

Some 200 rioters swept back and forth through the village square, fighting police, smashing windows, throwing beer cans and firecrackers and slashing fire hoses brought out to subdue the destruction-bent gangs.

Two deputy sheriffs were injured and three youths were arrested before order was restored by a broadside of water from the high pressure hoses.

"From all appearances, the riot was organized," Sheriff Henry E. Hill said. "We've talked with many persons and have learned that quite a few in the gang were in Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) when college students rioted there earlier this year."

Some 6,000 persons swarmed into the square of this community of 587, about 40 miles north of Milwaukee, after the opening races of the weekend June sprints at nearby Road America. The races attracted a total crowd of 15,000.

State highway police, sheriff's deputies, volunteer firemen and civil defense units joined in helping to put down the village riot which broke out about 9:30 p.m. and lasted more than an hour.

Many of the law officers had hats or helmets knocked off and stolen by the rioters.

"They were violent and dangerous," said one deputy sheriff. "They seemed to go for the uniform men."

Police Chief John Zimmermann said the rioters "had been drinking more than they could handle."

Many of the youths who battled police wore sweatshirts bearing the names of colleges throughout the country.

Women Scale Peak

TOKYO (AP) — A Peiping broadcast said Sunday two Tibetan women climbed to the 24,921-foot summit of Mt. Kungur Tibbie Tagh in the central Asian Pamirs and planted Communist China's flag there Saturday night.

The peak apparently is one listed in standard reference works as Min-ya Konka.

Rickover Blasts Navy System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover says the Navy is run in a way that would ruin any business unless it had unlimited capital or employed "a damn good forger" to raise the money.

As a start toward improving things, the pepper-tongued father of the nuclear submarine advocated getting rid of nearly one-third of the Navy's officers and drastically reforming or closing down the military academies.

"I believe we have about 70,000 officers in the Navy," Rickover said. "One of the most salutary things that could be done to improve naval efficiency would be to reduce this number by 20,000."

Rickover raked the Navy stem to stern after shocking the House Appropriations Committee with testimony that he didn't need any more money for nuclear reactors, wasn't asking for more and might well be returning some funds previously made available.

The provocative Rickover views were set forth in secret testimony given in May and made public Sunday.

The little man who bucked the Navy system to force acceptance of nuclear power heaped scorn on that system as a foolproof device "for the evasion of responsibility" by officers who move in and out of jobs every few years.

"We should at once knock off this infernal rotation of military people," said Rickover, contending the Navy "seems to exist for career-planning to make certain that every naval officer has exactly the same chance to become chief of naval operations."

The admiral blamed this state of affairs on the military educational system which he said produces officers "who are living in an age that has disappeared."

Rickover brushed aside the Navy postgraduate schools as a place to train officers to get better jobs on the outside. Then he lit into the U.S. Naval Academy.

The midshipmen of Annapolis, said Annapolis graduate Rickover, "are a regimented group being trained for a Navy which no longer exists by officers, many of whom do not know the real needs of today's Navy and who are not aware that they don't know."

He urged Congress to consider "abolishing the service academies . . . if drastic steps are not taken immediately to improve them."

Rickover based his call for such extreme action on his belief that nine out of ten academy students stop thinking and studying after graduation. He said he found them putting around the house, repairing cars, building furniture and becoming "nest-builders and bird-hatchers."

Mexico "Detains" Four Aboard Yacht Loaded With Arms

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — Mexican authorities Sunday night received instruction to deport Bernard Jerome Brous, 51, and Dale Chris Jensen, 33, charged with taking part in the sabotage of three communications towers in the western United States three weeks ago.

Federal prosecuting agent Mario Larrauri said that Jensen and Brous, along with Brous' wife and Robert Gerald Bortoli, were being taken to the Mexican-U.S. border to be delivered to American authorities.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — One of two men seized at Ensenada, Mexico, told a newsman Sunday he blew up three microwave stations in the United States on behalf of an organization he said advocates political overthrow of the United States.

Dale Chris Jensen, 33, was quoted by the San Diego Union in a copyrighted article as saying it was he who blasted the towers on the Utah-Nevada border May 28.

His companion, Bernard Jerome Brous, alias Robert Hill, said he heads the "American Republican Army" which he said advocates political overthrow of the United States.

Both Brous and Jensen said they had hoped blowing up of the towers would call attention of the American public to their cause.

The comments were given in an interview with Robert L. Curry, publisher of the South Bay Daily Breeze of Redondo Beach, Calif., who reported them to the Union. Both are newspapers of the Copley Press, Inc.

The Justice Department in Washington disclosed Sunday that the two men and two other persons were "detained" by Mexican authorities aboard a weapon-loaded yacht off Ensenada.

They were accused by the FBI of blowing up the key communication links.

Warrants Filed In Las Vegas

Complaints and warrants for the arrests, filed in Las Vegas, Nev., said the men "had reason to believe their acts would injure, interfere with or obstruct the United States in carrying on defense action."

Brous claimed the "American Republican Army" is similar in some respects to the militantly conservative John Birch Society, but more active.

Any similarities, however, were not immediately apparent to others.

Brous said he would support nationalization of the U.S. utility companies.

The two said they had filed a $4.7-million damage suit in the United States against private utility companies.

Brous himself was in Ensenada, Jensen said, when the unmanned towers were blown up.

Both are U.S. citizens. There was a strong suggestion that other people were involved with the accused pair in the nighttime blasts.

Ensenada is a little Pacific Coast port city about 75 miles south of San Diego, Calif.

Brous' Wife Detained

Mexican authorities also are detaining Brous' 40-year-old red-haired wife, a former dancer and model, as well as a third man, Robert Gerald Bortoli, 28, Reno, Nev., gambling house dealer, the FBI said.

No charge by Mexican authorities against the group was mentioned by the Justice Department announcement — and the FBI said the four technically were not "arrested." It said there "detention" was based on their possession of machine guns, hand grenades, (Continued on Page 2)

Sen. Kefauver Advocates Sweeping Safeguards Against Price-Rigging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Estes Kefauver of the Senate antitrust subcommittee Sunday urged Congress to enact strong legislative safeguards against price-fixing.

Among other things, he recommended that corporate officials be held personally responsible for halting price-fixing practices coming to their attention.

At the same time, Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges opposed any new legislation to regulate industrial pricing. He said "legislation is less needed than conscience on the part of the man who's running his business." Kefauver, whose subcommittee has held exhaustive hearings on price-fixing in the electrical equipment industry, made these other legislative recommendations.

—When a pattern of identical or similar bids emerges, government purchasing agencies should be required to obtain a certificate to the effect that no collusion has occurred.

—The presence of such a pattern should create a legal presumption of collusion and shift the burden of proof on the bidders.

—The executive order requiring agencies to submit evidence of identical bidding to the Justice Department should be enacted into law.

—Section 1 of the Sherman Act should be amended to make clear that an attempt to restrain trade by fixing prices is prohibited whether or not a sale takes place.

—Corporate penalties for violating the price fixing provisions should be increased from their present maximum of $50,000.

Kefauver told United Press International the recommendations were still in the discussion stage.

He worked as a columnist, specializing in mental health and other social problems, for 10 years with the newspaper PM, the New York Star, the New York Post and the New York Compass.

In 1950, Deutsch began a career of free-lancing, contributing to national magazines and writing books. Among his books, were "The Mentally Ill in America," "The Shame of the States," "Our Neglected Children" and "The Trouble With Cops."

Aged Medical Care Program Lag Indicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate report said Sunday only 10,000 aged persons were added to benefit rolls during the first six months of the medical care program enacted by Congress last September.

The report came from the Special Senate Committee on Aging, headed by Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich.

The report was based on a survey conducted among the 50 states and four territories by staff of the committee and technicians of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It showed that 25 of the 50 states expect to take advantage this year of the federal funds or subsidies offered by the Medical Assistance for the Aged program.

The MAA program was sponsored by Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., as a substitute for a bill to establish an aged medical care program financed through the Social Security program.

Instead it offers direct federal funds, to be provided from the Treasury rather than through increased Social Security taxes, to states which expand their medical care for the elderly.

The survey showed that 27,000 individuals received assistance from seven state-MAA programs operating in the recent October-May period.

But it noted that 17,000 of them previously had been receiving medical care through state old age assistance programs and were transferred to the new MAA programs.

McNamara, in a statement accompanying the 72-page report, said the survey indicated some 12 million older men and women will not be protected under any public program of medical care as of January 1962.

McNamara said the survey indicated need for congressional approval of "basic health benefits to all the aged, financed by an increase in the Social Security payroll deduction."

Maryland Cattle Rustlers Sought

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP)—Cattle rustlers in Montgomery County? County police said it looks that way, as they launched a search for five missing Holstein heifers believed stolen from a farm operated by Mc Kendree Fuiks near Laytonville.

Fuiks told police Friday he had discovered the loss a week ago and had conducted a fruitless search.

"It definitely looks like the work of rustlers," said Detective Sgt. Frank D. Griggs.

Howard Bruce Funeral Today

BALTIMORE (AP) — Funeral services will be held Monday for Howard Bruce, 81-year-old banking, industrial and political leader, who died Saturday at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

He was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage Thursday.

Bruce was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, the highest award given to a civilian serving the military forces, for his work as director of materiel for the armed services during World War II.

He was Maryland's Democratic national committeeman from 1926 to 1940, when he ran unsuccessfully for the party's nomination to the U.S. Senate.

In 1952, Bruce was one of 47 prominent Maryland Democrats who supported the presidential candidacy of Dwight D. Eisenhower. Bruce also backed Eisenhower in his bid for a second term.

During his career, Bruce served as a director with various companies, including the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. He also was a former member of the State Roads Commission.

Creation Of Science Office Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Creation of a new "Office of Science and Technology" within the office of the President was recommended Sunday to improve science organization at the summit of government.

The recommendation calls for a reorganization and strengthening of present scientific advisory channels at the White House level. It was made in a report drafted by the staff of the Senate subcommittee on national policy machinery.

It proposed, among other things that the present post of special assistant on science and technology and the jobs of the Science Advisory Committee—a setup begun during the Eisenhower administration and continued by President Kennedy — be made "permanent parts of the government — with statutory underpinning."

Collision Cuts Boat In Half; Trio Rescued

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 363-foot Dutch freighter collided with a cabin cruiser in Chesapeake Bay Saturday night, cutting the smaller vessel in two.

Three persons aboard the 40-foot cruiser, Van Der IV, were rescued by the crew of the freighter, Medon, after the accident near the Chesapeake Bay Bridge.

Released after treatment at Church Home Hospital in Baltimore were John Van Deepen, 49, Germantown, Pa., owner of the cruiser; Arthur Glose, 58, Allentown, Pa., and Miss Dorothy Dilley, Allentown.

Back Cause

(Continued from Page 1) pistols and ammunition aboard a 47-foot, two-masted schooner. They were aboard the vessel, which the department said is owned by Brous.

The suggestion that others than Brous and Jensen might be involved was in FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's statement that the complaint accused both men "and other unknown persons" of conspiracy to commit sabotage.

However, only one of the three sabotaged towers was mentioned in the complaint, the one at Wendover, Nev. The other two are at Knolls, Utah, and Cedar Mountain, Utah.

The relay towers, which are located in the desert, are normally unmanned since they operate automatically. They are part of the backbone of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. system of relaying signals through the air by line of sight, with stations about 30 miles apart.

The towers are part of the nation's defense communications as well as links for the TV networks and for civilian telephone traffic. However, the three Sunday dawn blasts of three weeks ago caused only minor disruptions of the military circuits since automatic equipment immediately shuttled messages to another system.

Some types of commercial communication, including news wires of press agencies, were knocked out for as much as three or four hours.

Mountain Conquered

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—O.D. Shamra, 25, Indian schoolmaster, and two Sherpas have climbed the peak of Nilkantha, it was announced Sunday. The group was reported to have mastered the 21,640-foot mountain last Tuesday. It had defied seven attempts by British, New Zealand and Indian teams since 1937.

Women Voters Launch New Referendum Drive

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland League of Women Voters has started a new signature drive aimed at forcing to referendum an act creating the state's new 8th congressional district from Prince Georges and Howard counties.

The league's second petition campaign against the act began last week after Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan ruled that one invalid signature on a petition form would cancel all signatures on that form.

Finan referred to petitions filed June 1 against a bill broadening the powers of Baltimore's new Municipal Court. Five of those petitions were turned over to Baltimore police handwriting experts to check possible evidence of forgery.

The league also filed on June 1 some 28,000 signatures of persons desiring a statewide vote or the redistricting act. Only 10,000 valid signatures are required to place a bill on referendum ballot.

The new 8th district petition drive is concentrated in Baltimore City and Prince Georges and Baltimore counties. Signatures collected in this drive will be used to cover any possible cancellations.

Juvenile Judge Urges Curbs On Teen Motorists

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP)—Judge Alfred D. Noyes of the Montgomery County Juvenile Court has proposed curbs on teenage motorists which may include virtual prohibition of driving to and from school.

His proposals, which county school authorities have promised to study this summer, were the result of a court session Thursday involving police, students, parents and educators.

The session was called to deal with what Judge Noyes said is an increasingly serious problem and was the direct result of numerous traffic arrests last month near Walter Johnson High School in Rockville.

He said complaints had become so numerous that school officials should consider "not allowing children to drive to school unless absolutely necessary." He said juvenile court statistics indicate six out of seven cases before him involve the use of a car.

Federal Milk Market Hearing To Open Today

NEW YORK (AP)—The feasibility of establishing a uniform method of computing prices for 10 milk market districts will be discussed at a hearing starting here Monday.

The federal milk marketing hearing was asked by the Dairy-men's League Cooperative. It may last as long as several months.

Coming under review will be the method of pricing some three million quarts of milk used annually in making cheese, butter, ice cream, powdered milk and other manufactured dairy products from Boston to Washington, D. C.

The dairymen's league said it will mark the first time the government has recognized the relationship of farm milk prices in the 10 districts by grouping them in a single hearing.

League president Russell E. Dennis said his organization will offer testimony to support its proposal for setting up a uniform method of computing prices for manufacturing milk in the districts.

Present differences in the prices established for by-product milk are causing unfair competition and disorderly marketing conditions, Dennis said.

A plan to bolster the entire price structure for manufacturing milk in the Northeast also is to be discussed.

The federal milk market districts involved in the hearing include Upper Chesapeake Bay, Md.; Washington, D. C. (and parts of Maryland and Virginia); and Wilmington, Del.

Butler Urges Ship Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Marshall Butler, R-Md., warned Sunday that the U. S. merchant fleet is becoming obsolete and must be replaced in the face of a Soviet upsurge in seapower.

"As the international struggle moves away from the great land area of Europe," Butler said in a weekly report to constituents, "the demands upon the American Navy will become increasingly greater. Our lines are being stretched too thin."

"I have said it before and I say it again: Our Merchant Marine is approaching obsolescence. Seventy seven per cent of our deep sea cargo ships were built nearly 20 years ago during World War II. And the subsidized replacement program is not proceeding fast enough to prevent this obsolescence."

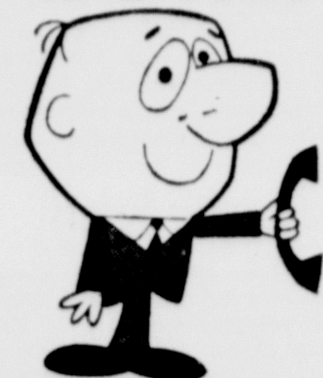

"In contrast," Butler said, "the Soviet merchant fleet is young, vigorous and growing rapidly."

Switches made of semimetal such as antimony and bismuth are in the research stage. Such switches should be able to operate much more swiftly than the present transistors in computing machines.

Garrett County To Vote Wednesday On Whisky

OAKLAND — Garrett county citizens will go to the polls Wednesday to decide whether the election districts will authorize or turn down the legal sale of whisky.

At present only beer is legally sold in the county. Garrett is the only county in Maryland where whisky is not legally sold.

A bill enacted in the General Assembly in March provided for a referendum on the subject. A similar bill was rejected by the people in November 1956 by a majority of almost two to one.

The measure to be voted on makes the sale of whisky by local option. This means if any of the 16 election districts votes in favor of it, intoxicants may be sold legally in that particular district. The bill provides for setting up liquor stores in Grantsville and Oakland, and that all liquor legally sold would have to be purchased from these two stores.

This, in effect, would also mean that if District 3, Grantsville and Jennings; District 7, East Oakland and District 14, Oakland and Crellin, would vote against the legal sale, it would be impossible for any other district to obtain it, even should they vote wet.

The 20 polling places in the 16 districts will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. (EST).

FSTC Summer School Will Open Today

FROSTBURG — The fourth annual summer session at Frostburg State Teachers College will open today with classes beginning at 9:30 a. m.

Registration will be held from 7:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. in Allegany Hall, according to Ivan C. Diehl, dean of instruction.

Twenty-five courses are being offered during the session, 20 in the arts and sciences and five in education. Classes will begin at 8 a. m. and continue to 4:50 p. m. Monday through Friday. The session will close July 28.

Teachers desirous of registering for courses to meet certification requirements should have the approval of their county superintendents of schools, and should have their credits evaluated by the Division of Certification and Accreditation, Maryland State Department of Education. Those desiring credit for renewal of certification should have their courses approved by their county superintendents of schools.

All applicants for the degree of master of education must file an official graduate application form which may be secured from the registrar in charge of admissions. This completed form, together with an official transcript of undergraduate and any graduate work completed, must be sent to the registrar. Upon receipt of all credentials, the applicant's record will be reviewed by the graduate committee to determine whether the admission is regular or provisional.

Fifty per cent or more of the courses included in the program for the degree of Master of Education must be 500-level courses designed exclusively for graduate students. Other courses necessary for the completion of the degree may be those bearing a 400-level number, provided the same or similar courses have not been taken in undergraduate work. All work credited toward the master's degree must be completed within a seven-year period.

Oil As Weapon In Cold War

No single commodity other than food is as important to the economic well being of so many lands as oil. Without it, oil-producing countries would decline into second-rate nations.

Oil users would be even more disastrously affected should oil supplies suddenly be shut off. It is no exaggeration to describe the modern world as revolving on oil. Industry, transportation, homes, armed forces and the government all require huge quantities of oil daily.

Russia is beginning to reap some of the rewards of its 10-year-old drive to replace Western oil in neutral areas and even in some lands allied in the fight to prevent further communization of the world.

New refineries, new pipelines and new sales gimmicks are fortifying Russian oil inroads in world markets. Soviet oil now flows to Japan, Finland, Sweden, Denmark, Iceland, Britain, Italy, India, Greece, Egypt, Brazil, Ghana, Guinea, Tunisia and Afghanistan. And Cuba.

Soviet oil reserves are estimated at 20 per cent of the world total. Only inadequate facilities hold back a great outflow of Russian oil, and Moscow is working on this angle. Profit is not the object of Kremlin oil policies, or of its other trade agreements. Destruction of Western outlets and influence is the goal. That is why Soviet oil is sold to far-away Brazil at $1 a barrel, but brings $2.68 a barrel in captive Poland.

Economic warfare is gaining in importance as a tool of Soviet conquest. It is still relatively small, but gaining momentum. Oil is likely to become the foremost weapon in this offensive, and the West can be assured Moscow has no intention of stopping at 14 per cent or any other arbitrary point in the capture of world markets.

It is time for Washington to do more than fret about the possible effects of Soviet oil in the currents of world trade. They are obvious.

These Days

National Accountancy

What is the United States, as a going concern, worth?

Governments employ primitive methods of accountancy with the result that we are in the red when actually we are in the black or vice versa. The Treasury of the United States could not file a statement of assets which would be accepted by the Securities and Exchange Commission or the New York Stock Exchange, or any bank.

Representative Charles E. Bennett of Florida has introduced a Bill (H.R. 902) in the House of Representatives which would require the government of the United States to employ correct accounting methods. The present Secretary of the Treasury cannot use the plea of ignorance. Douglas Dillon is a banker, the son of a banker and well-trained. He must know that the government of the United States cannot produce an accurate or even an honest balance sheet—one that the Internal Revenue Service would accept from a citizen.

Congressman Bennett's Bill is a first step in the direction of preparing a proper balance sheet. Its preamble reads:

"To establish an immediate program to aid in reducing the public debt by providing that certain receipts from the sale of capital assets of the Government shall be used for such purpose."

Actually the bookkeeping system used by the Treasury includes no capital assets. If the United States sells a building, it does not dispose of a capital asset; it sells its property like a housewife sells old clothes to a junkman. She puts the money in her pocket and spends it. But she has made no record of a capital sale or of a profit or loss.

Representative Bennett's Bill reads:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in order to establish an immediate program to aid in reducing the public debt, all receipts covered into the Treasury for deposit in the general fund and resulting from the sale (after the date of the enactment of this Act) of any property of the Federal Government which is considered a capital asset under proper accounting procedure shall be deposited into a special account which shall be established on the books of the Treasury."

The Secretary of the Treasury shall from time to time utilize the money in such special account for the payment at maturity or the redemption or purchase before maturity of obligations of the United States which are included in the public debt of the United States. All obligations of the United States paid, redeemed, or purchased with money out of such special account shall be canceled and retired and shall not be reissued. All money deposited in the special account is hereby appropriated and shall be available for expenditure for the purpose of the Act.

The essence of this Bill is proper accounting procedure. As it stands today, the United States maintains that it carries a debt of $289,000,000,000 against which it has no assets except the good-will of the government as a going concern.

Proper accounting would probably establish that the United States has a secured indebtedness, parts of which could be wiped off without lessening the value of the dollar. Our government is enormously rich in assets. In 1959, the United States owned 1,837,762,560 acres of public domain. The Federal Government owns 369,995 buildings which are valued at $17,523,984,000. This valuation is an estimate, as no accounting survey has ever been made.

Public bookkeeping generally is shamefully kept. For instance, the City of New York is now going through a disgraceful scandal over its school property. Buildings have been neglected and abused. Repairs are rare. Let us have a look at this from the standpoint of accountancy. These school buildings are worth about $1,500,000,000. If two percent were set aside each year for repairs and reconditioning, it would mean that the city would have to provide $30,000,000 for that purpose annually. The city has never done that. It has made repairs when it has been required to make repairs. It has patched up holes and covered up decay. No accountancy system has ever determined the value of this real estate, no depreciation fund is set aside, no contingency fund exists.

Government has become too big for this sort of free and easy accounting either nationally or locally. We need to know where we stand.

JFK Gives Khrushchev Propaganda Advantage

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — All around the world the Communist propaganda war continues to fill the press and the air waves with words that twist and distort the peaceful purposes of the United States.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has just taken advantage of the publicity build-up which President Kennedy gave him by going to a conference with him alone at Vienna. A nationwide television speech inside Russia—something rare—is used by the Soviet ruler to stir up animosity against the United States. It was broadcast by radio at the same time throughout the world.

Coincidentally, Fidel Castro, coached by Moscow, has heaped insult and insult on the United States by increasing his demand for "indemnity" for the "invasion" of Cuba. Hence, the ransom price for releasing the prisoners has gone up from around $2.5 million, which was supposed to be the value of the tractors Castro wanted, to approximately $28 million. America's prestige will take another nosedive if the United States government encourages any more efforts to appease Castro.

Coincidentally, also, there are anti-American demonstrations in Venezuela and Chile which are inspired by Moscow and conducted by Communists. In some instances these manifestations of hostility are directed against officers of the United States embassies and, in some, against Adlai Stevenson, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations who is making a so-called "goodwill" trip to Latin America.

Coincidentally, moreover, the conferences at Geneva on a nuclear-test ban and on Laos drag on without tangible result. The Communists have issued an ultimatum—they demand that the nuclear-testing issue be merged with the disarmament question, which means many more months of futile negotiation. They insist also that the West surrender on Laos and let the government there be turned over to a so-called "neutral" government—which means one dominated by the Communists.

But the outstanding propaganda stunt is the Khrushchev speech. It was billed as a "report to the nation" paralleling that of President Kennedy. There were noticeable differences in the Soviet viewpoint as presented to the American people by Mr. Kennedy and that which the Soviet Premier gave on Thursday to the people throughout Europe.

It is apparent that Mr. Kennedy's euphemistic statement that "no major decision was either planned or taken" and that there was no "ultimatum" presented on Berlin must be taken now with a grain of salt. For the Soviet Premier in his speech sets forth a deadline—the end of the current year. At that time, if no surrender has been made on West Berlin by the West, a peace treaty between Moscow and the East German Republic will be signed.

Such a step means a challenge to possible war. For the West has said it will resist any attempt by the East German authorities to interfere with the access routes that must be used by the West in order to get in and out of Berlin. The situation is well summed up in a dispatch from Reuters News Service from Moscow, as follows:

"Western observers in Moscow said it seemed evident that all Kennedy's arguments in Vienna for the Western viewpoint had made little difference to Khrushchev's thinking."

Indeed, the Soviet Premier clung to the same points he made before the conference with President Kennedy. The Russian ruler professes, of course, to be pleased with the idea of "summit" meetings. He says his meeting with Mr. Kennedy "was a good opportunity for the first personal contact and exchange of views on basic problems between myself as chairman of the Council of Ministers of the Soviet Union and the new President of the United States."

But what the Soviet ruler no doubt really meant was that the occasion gave him a theatrical setting for the subsequent delivery of his diatribes against the United States. It gave him a world-wide forum thereafter in which to repeat his false statements about the Western position on disarmament, nuclear testing and the Berlin issue.

Nikita Khrushchev, like Adolf Hitler, knows that the West wants peace now—at almost any price. Western governments again give the impression that they are willing to make concessions through "negotiation" rather than take steps that could lead to war. History shows that, in the end, the effort to avoid a showdown brings on war itself. "Miscalculation" of the ultimate extent of Western resolve is still the danger that faces the world today. Premier Khrushchev's speech has shown his defiance of, as well as his indifference to, the arguments of the President of the United States at Vienna. Acts, not words, will be decisive now in avoiding war.

President Kennedy's Health Record Reveals Long History Of Illnesses

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—In view of the rumors regarding President Kennedy's health, it may be well to review his record even though previously published piecemeal. He has been plagued with illness most of his life, yet has a wiry toughness, an inner grit that has enabled him to conquer health setbacks.

His trouble began at 13 with a severe appendicitis attack which forced him to quit school early that year. Shortly before he entered college, he was sent to London for a preparatory course, but came down with jaundice. This delayed his admission to Princeton until several weeks after classes began, then a recurrence of jaundice ended his Princeton career altogether.

He made a second start at Harvard, where his schooling was again interrupted by minor illnesses. Despite these attacks and his Frank Sinatra physique, his inner toughness and competitive spirit enabled him to hold his own against bigger fellows in athletics. But this only brought more trouble. He injured his back playing football. He switched to swimming and beat out the competition for back stroker on the swimming team. But the week before the traditional meet against Yale, he came down with the flu. His roommate, Torby MacDonald, now Congressman from Massachusetts, smuggled in steaks and malts to help build up his strength and sneaked him out to practice secretly in the pool. Result: His flu got worse and the substitutes swam for him against Yale.

War Injury
Kennedy was rejected by the Army after Pearl Harbor because of his back injury. But, again, his inner spirit came into play, and he took special exercises for five months until he could pass the Navy's fitness test.

His encounter with a Japanese destroyer which rammed his PT boat threw Kennedy fiercely on his back, aggravating the old football injury. Yet he not only helped rescue wounded survivors but towed one man three miles to the nearest island by holding a strap of the man's life jacket in his clenched teeth.

The experience was too much for Kennedy's health. He not only had serious trouble with his back, but came down with malaria. This combination knocked his weight down to 125 pounds and he was shipped home to Miami to recuperate.

A year later he was back in the hospital for a disc operation on his back. His back began to bother him again during his 1952 campaign for the Senate. Soon he was on crutches. Then he was hit by another malarial attack. At his wedding in 1954, his back bothered him so much that he was almost unable to kneel at the altar. He had to spend most of the summer on crutches.

The pain became so unbearable that he considered a perilous operation. Despite doctors' warnings that he would have only a 50-50 chance to survive, he submitted to a double fusion of his spinal discs. For weeks he hovered near death. Once his face puffed up, a reaction to a blood transfusion. At the suggestion of his doctors, he was flown in a stretcher to Florida to recuperate.

Almost Died
He failed to improve, and was flown back to the New York hospital for another operation. He came so near to death on the operating table that he was given the last rites. But a plate was successfully removed from his spine and he began to recover. After several months' recuperation he was able to throw away his crutches.

Still his back continued to give him trouble. He tried several treatments and finally at the suggestion of Dr. Janet Travell, he took novocaine injections, which relaxed his back muscles and permitted the blood to flow. He has discarded a protective corset that he had been forced to wear, but he still sleeps on a board to brace his back.

The problem which gave President Kennedy the most trouble prior to his election was a deficiency of the adrenal glands, which he has never attempted to conceal. During the election campaign he took cortisone on doctor's orders, which controlled this deficiency. During periods of stress he has sometimes gone back to cortisone.

Despite his long history of illnesses, his doctors during the pre-nomination campaign pronounced him in better health than at any time in his life, and having remarkable vitality.

Probably no president in recent history has followed such a rigorous schedule as Kennedy since taking office in January.

JFK Swaps Italian Stories
Premier Amintore Fanfani of Italy got more laughs than his host, President Kennedy, when they traded stories at the White House luncheon honoring Fanfani. Premier Fanfani said that the Kennedy clan still rated high with Italians on both sides of the Atlantic, and recalled how Rep. Victor Antuso of Brooklyn had introduced him to Senator Kennedy at the 1956 Democratic Convention in Chicago.

"At that time you were a candidate for Vice President and I was rooting for you, though you didn't make it," recalled Fanfani. "It was there that I also met for the first time the 1956 Democratic nominee, Adlai Stevenson, who told me that if he lost the election he would come to Italy to get some political pointers from me."

Stevenson kept his promise. Following his defeat by Eisenhower he visited Fanfani's country home in Italy where a donkey and cart were placed at his disposal. Fanfani told President Kennedy that Stevenson seemed mystified by this and remarked: "I hope you do not think me an ungrateful guest, Amintore, but why have you provided me with a donkey when there are automobiles about?"

"Is not the donkey a symbol of your party?" inquired Fanfani. "Forgive me, you are a true Democrat, a man of the people," apologized Stevenson. "But tell me, if President Eisenhower were here, would you provide him with the same facility?"

"Oh, no," said Fanfani. "I'd get him an elephant."

DEMOCRACY — A tall, distinguished white haired man and his handsome lady stepped from their chauffeured limousine and walked into a mid-town cafeteria. They picked up trays and joined the line slowly moving past the steam tables. It was the height of the dinner hour in Washington. The man chose filet of haddock, mustard greens, buttered noodles, coleslaw, watermelon and tea. She selected fried chicken, cranberry sauce, watermelon and coffee. A waitress helped the woman with her tray, escorting her and her companion to an empty table for two. They then ate their dinner, apparently unnoticed in the crowded cafeteria. A Negro seated nearby, stepped over, shook hands with the couple, chatted a few minutes and left.

When the two departed, the cashier accepted the money proffered with their checks, gave the man some change, and said, "It was so nice having you, please come again." The couple stepped into their limousine, the chauffeur handed them each a section of the evening newspaper, and the Chief Justice of the United States and Mrs. Earl Warren drove away, leading in the back seat.

Electric Toothbrush Is An Enjoyable Luxury

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Each member of the family can have his own.

Most of us brush our teeth by hand. The same can be said of shaving yet the electric razor has proved useful to many men.

The electric toothbrush moves in a vertical direction, the way dentists recommend. In addition, it is small enough to get into crevices, jacket and crown margins, malposed anteriors, and the back teeth. The bristles are soft enough to massage the gums and not scratch the enamel.

It is conceivable that Broxodont could do a better job than ordinary brushing, especially in those who do not brush their teeth properly. Several dentists and patients with special dental problems have experimented with the device. The results were good, although they are difficult to compare with hand brushing, particularly when the individual knows how to brush his teeth properly. The electric gadget is most helpful when there are many crowned teeth and in individuals who are elderly, bedfast with a chronic disease, or are handicapped by disorders such as cerebral palsy or muscular dystrophy.

But, for many of us, it will prove an enjoyable luxury. It is not as convenient as the old type toothbrush and the paste tends to shimmy off the bristles. Since it requires experimentation and changes in technique.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Rocky thinks he is people. This, in a dog, is bad. He would rather starve than eat dog food, he greets visitors at the door as though he were the host and, recently, he has taken to stretching off on my bedspread for an afternoon nap. Is there such a thing as a dog psychiatrist?

He is only 4, so it can't be senility. He is an 85-pound black police dog who likes to sit in graceful poses, like a canine movie star, with bushy tail straight out, pink tongue lolling on pointed teeth, and big ears up. He looks as normal as the rest of the family. In some ways — oh well, why start an argument?

His real name is Rocky of Shrewsbury. The name did not germinate because no one around here ever yelled: "Rock of Shrewsbury — stop that!" He has been called Rocky, and The Rock, since he arrived as a fluffy, shivering ball of fur.

The trouble dates, I think, from the time his bride arrived. She was smaller than he, and she had a beautiful golden coat, but her nagging manner seemed to upset him. He is, most of all, a gentleman dog. So much so, I might say, that he is slightly simple. He used to stand aside and watch Sandy eat her dinner, then he'd catch her eat his.

I built a pink and black honeymoon cottage for the love birds. Sandy got inside like a thoroughly domesticated lady, and was ready to set up light housekeeping, but bonehead didn't understand the rules. (Around here we spell the word bonehead, so that Rocky won't get a complex.)

He used to stand outside the doghouse with a rubber ball in his teeth, jumping straight up and down. Sandy looked at him as though he had flipped his toupee. She began to feel that she had lost her touch, and took to using eyebrow pencil and false lashes down to here.

In time, their union was blessed with eight babies, all of whom looked like the old man. He was a perfect father; the only one I've seen who lifted the little ones out of the box in his teeth, bathed them one by one, flipped them over, washed them behind the ears, and put them back beside their mother.

Eight weeks later, Sandy left him for a traveling salesman dog who played a hot trumpet. We have never seen her again, but we have heard that she has taken up smoking and she cha-cha's all night. Last winter, I went to Miami, so I left the Rock with my daughter Ginny, who has a gorgeous police dog named Tammy.

The ox (we don't spell that around here because most of us keep adding an "e" and we can't stand being corrected by the dog) frisked and romped with

Tammy all winter. However, when Tammy wanted to start a little light housekeeping, Rocky took off in fright and tried to climb an elm. Tammy became so nervous that she has developed a tic in the right eye and everybody in Lincoln thinks she's a flirt.

Rocky is a he-man in every way, but has developed an anti-dog complex. He has seceded from caninesville. He is, he thinks, people. It is a trying period for him. It is also a trying period for me and, when it gets too trying, he gets a sharp rap on the tail.

The food situation is in crisis. We have tried every known dog food and he trots out into the backyard, sniffs it, takes a half-hearted bite and walks sadly away. If, on the other hand, there is a shred of steak left from our dinner, he gobbles it and runs his long tongue along the sides of his mouth and gives us a pitiful plea with the big brown eyes.

He is losing weight. Right now he's down to the size of a small pony. Lately, he has become a candy addict. We have two old-fashioned candy jars on the piano and he sits in front of them mutely. He eats licorice, sour balls, chocolate kisses and Life Savers. They may not do anything for his health, but the Life Savers have improved his breath.

Another weird thing is that he now jumps the fence in the back yard, and runs around to the front and scratches on the door for admittance. This is like a jailbird — well, you get the idea. He will sit up late if Joey Bishop is on the Paar Show, but I've never heard Rocky laugh at the jokes. He just sits and stares. Sometimes he just licks his lips.

The one thing I will not permit — among his subtle debaucheries — is lying on my bed. He climbs onto the green bedspread, stretches full length in such a way that he can keep a half-slit eye on a space between the Venetian blinds so that he can see me coming home before I see him, and he dozes.

Before I get halfway up the walk, he is off the bed, waiting at the door with wagging tail, and t-ying to look alert. I walk in, feel the warmth of the bedspread, and give him a little whack. "No no," I say. "Not on the bed, stupid."

This has made him even more confused, because he can't understand how I found out. He lowers his ears, his tail, his landing gear, and lifts his feet high and leaves the room.

What I want to know, Beatrice Fairfax, is should I give him my bed?

Barrelville's Dave Richards beat Moorefield for the second time this season as the Old Exports downed the league-leaders, 4-1, yesterday in a Pen Mar Baseball League game at Barrelville.

Richards struck out 16 batters and walked only one as he stopped Moorefield after the visitors had scored a single tally in the first inning. Although touched for nine hits, Richards was tough in the clutches as second-place Barrelville closed the gap between the two teams to one game.

Dave Vance was the victim of a four-run uprising in the initial frame when two walks, Dorcil Kline's single, a double by Ronnie Cage and an error produced the tallies.

Ed Parsons hit a solo home run in the eighth to conclude the scoring for the Old Exports. Vance held the winners to five hits, Cage getting a single in addition to his two-bagger and Jim Pooch Lewis adding a double to the attack. Vance struck out 10 and walked two in going the route in a losing effort.

Victory Is Eighth

The win was the eighth for Barrelville while Moorefield suffered its third loss.

The Old Exports took over sole possession of second place in the league standings when the Frostburg Merchants spilled the Hyndman Merchants twice in a double header at Hyndman.

The twin loss by 8-7 and 9-4 scores knocked Hyndman out of a tie for second.

Roger Manges weathered a three-run rally by Hyndman in the ninth to go the route for Frostburg in the opener and Mike Kasnick picked up his first pitching triumph in the second, although relieved by Stevenson in the seventh.

Glen Deremer was the victim of the first game loss by Hyndman as Frostburg broke out in a rash of extra base hits. Gene Zumpano belted three doubles and a single and Dick Pitko smacked a bases-clear homer in the seventh for the winners.

Pitko Homers Again

A five-run burst in the seventh led the second game for the visitors as they routed Vohn Lehman early with a 16-hit attack. Jim Rice collected three singles in this game for Frostburg while Pitko again homered in the seventh with nobody aboard.

Shaw chipped in with a double and single and Allan Eisel straddled at short for Frostburg.

Bob Bryant had a pair of hits and Don May doubled for Hyndman in the second game.

In the opener Lloyd "Pete" Deremer garnered three hits including a clutch single in the ninth when Hyndman's three-run rally fell short of tying the score. Three errors, two walks and Deremer's single brought in the runs before Manges put out the fire.

Two runs in the ninth inning broke a 1-1 tie and gave Mt. Savage a 3-1 decision over Salisbury's Cardinals on the latter's diamond yesterday.

Rich Lybarger, who collected three hits for the winners, singled and Ken Johnson doubled to open the inning. Rodney Johnson was intentionally passed and Wayne Johnson stroled to force home the tie-breaking tally.

Salisbury threatened in the ninth against winner Jesse Markley when the Cardinals loaded the bases, but David Jones popped out to the second baseman to end the game.

Jaycee Junior Golf Event Set For CCC Today

Twenty or more youthful golfers will strive to qualify for three places in the Maryland Jaycee Junior Tournament when they tee off in an 18-hole test today over the Cumberland Country Club course.

The first foursome is slated to tee off at 10:05 a. m. Steve Johnson led the local field last season and figures to qualify for the third straight year. Jim Goebel, Frostburg, who made it last year, is also among those entered in today's medal play test.

Three loss scorers will go to the state tourney at Pine Ridge near Towson, for 36 holes of medal play, July 6-7. The four low scorers in the state event will compete in the Jaycee International Tournament at Denver, Colo., August 20-26.

Golfers of Oakland, Frostburg and Cumberland will participate in today's round.

Oakland entries are Lindsay Gonder, Garry Orr and Dave Nordeck. Frostburg contestants are Goebel, Gary Miller and Warren Lancaster.

Those from Cumberland expected to participate are Johnson, Charles Butts, Harold Apple, Mike Erly, Bray Perry, Bob Ricker, Rich Smith, Mark Perry, Walter Dayton, Charlie Morris, Paul Green, Tim Nelson, Gary Elliott, Albert Dayton, Garry Young, Tom Elliott and "Butch" Hare.

Zeller's Foursome Cops Country Club Pro-Am Tournament

A net 52 by the foursome composed of Bill Zeller, Ed George, Glenn Brant and Charles Steiner paced the field in the pro-am tournament held yesterday by the Men's Golf Association at the Cumberland Country Club.

Four foursomes tied for second place with 56s. They were Jerome Ellenson, Wally Hankin, Jack Lucas and George Tukey; Royce Hodges, James W. Beacham, Jack Weber and George Schwarzembach; Bob Davis, Howard F. Radcliffe, Paul Owens and William A. Cook and Joe Wolfe, Merrill R. Barnes, Ivan Hall and Dave Miller.

The four-man combinations of George Garlitz, Jim Truka, George Newman and George Millenson and Clifton Van Roby, Dr. J. P. Hallinan, A. H. Tyler and Nate Hauger tied with net scores of 57.

Joe Wolfe and Ivan Hall had the twosome best ball of 58. Bill Zeller and Glenn Brant were the runners-up with 59 and Clifton Van Roby and A. H. Tyler had a 60.

Thirty foursomes participated in the Sunday event.

In the best nine tourney held over the weekend Joe Wolfe headed a field of 26 players with a net score of 33-4-29.

Players with flags on par three holes were:

No. 1 — George Bottorf, No. 6 — George Millenson, No. 10 — James W. Beacham, No. 12 — Russell Ponton, No. 15 — Max Bastian, No. 18 — John S. Wilson. Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson won the championship of the fourth flight in the spring handicap tournament by defeating Dr. Donald Groves in the finals, 4 and 3.

In a seventh flight match, Walter Brock won over Bob Keech, 2 up.

Ft. Cumberland Tops Victory Post, 4-0

Fort Cumberland Post avenged an earlier setback by blanking Victory Post of Westernport in a Mountain District, American Legion Junior Baseball League game Saturday at Stitzer Field. The score was 4-0.

The win enabled the locals to tie Westernport for first place, each team owning 2-1 records. Jim Stewart went the route for Cumberland, yielding only four hits while fanning six.

Mike Long and Joe Ranker belted two-run homers for the home team.

Donnie Raines, losing pitcher, gave up eight hits and fanned 12. Fort Cumberland Post plays Farrady Post at Frostburg Tuesday.

Miller Cops Maplehurst Golf Crown

Defeats Defending Champion Cook, 3-2

Charley Miller won the sixth annual spring handicap golf championship tournament at the Maplehurst Country Club Saturday by defeating defending champion Francis Cook, 3 and 2 in the finals.

Miller posted a 76 for the par 72 eighteen holes while Cook carded an 81.

Crowd Sets New Record; Whitey Ford Wins 11th

DETROIT (AP) — The New York Yankees, behind the three-hit pitching crafty Whitey Ford, bombed the Detroit Tigers with a 15-hit attack for a 9-0 victory Sunday before a record-setting crowd at Tiger Stadium.

Ford, winning his 11th game against only two losses, developed a blister on his pitching hand and left after eight innings. Luis Arroyo pitched the ninth inning and retired the Tigers in order, using only four pitches to set down the heart of the Detroit batting order.

The Yankees, salvaging the final game of the three-game series, routed their old tormentor, Frank Lary, in the third inning. The Yanks hit two home runs off Lary and scored five times before he was lifted.

The crowd of 44,459 raised the total for the three-game series to 147,712, breaking a mark that had stood for 10 years.

Chisox Down Twins Twice

Deal Minnesota 4-3, 10-7 Setbacks

CHICAGO (AP) — Unexpected ninth-inning homers by Billy Goodman and Nelson Fox in the opener and a devastating extra-base hit attack in the nightcap sent the Chicago White Sox rolling to a double victory over Minnesota Sunday, 4-3 and 10-7.

Goodman, who hadn't hit a home run since 1959, clubbed one with a man on and wiped out a 3-1 Minnesota lead. Fox smacked his first of the season, ending the game and spoiling newcomer Dagoberto Cueto's major league debut.

The second game, spiced by the squabbling of Minnesota right-hander Camilo Pascual, saw the Sox bang out 14 hits, including seven for extra bases.

Pascual was knocked out of the box in the fifth when the Sox broke loose for six runs including a two-run homer by Al Smith and took a 9-2 lead. Before Pascual left, he got into a heated argument with plate umpire Joe Paparella while the crowd of 22,644 booed the Twins' right-hander.

Birds Are Tough In Saturday Games

CLEVELAND (AP)—When the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Cleveland Indians 4-1 Saturday, it was their ninth victory without defeat in Saturday games this season.

For games Sunday through Friday, Baltimore's record was a less impressive 22-31.

Gene Freese Stars As Reds Sweep Twin Bill

Gets Seven Hits In 7-2, 10-0 Wins Over Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gene Freese, who once played for Philadelphia, led the way with seven hits, one short of a perfect day at the plate, as the Cincinnati Reds swept a doubleheader from the Phillies Sunday, 7-2, then 10-0.

Jim O'Toole, getting his sixth victory against six losses, pitched the shutout, allowing 10 hits. The first-place Reds had 16.

Wally Post, another former Philadelphia player, put the Reds ahead in the opener by hitting a home run in the fourth inning with two men on base. Freese, who was 3-3 in the first game, hit his 13th home run of the year.

Howie Nunn, who relieved in the second after the Phillies scored two runs, allowed only five hits the rest of the way. He got his second victory with no losses.

In the nightcap, Post got his eighth home run of the season, and Frank Robinson got his 13th.

Braves Blast Dodgers, 10-2

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves, who have hit a lot of home runs for nothing this year, slammed five more Sunday and got a 10-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Dodger starter Don Drysdale was tagged for three straight homers in the third inning — by Hank Aaron, Joe Adcock, and Frank Thomas — and Adcock connected again in the fourth with two men aboard.

The defeat dropped the Dodgers into third place, two games back of Cincinnati and a half-game behind San Francisco.

The Braves, who hit 10 homers in two days earlier this month and lost both times, accumulated 14 hits off Drysdale and his three successors. They broke Drysdale's string of scoreless innings at 14.

Hat and hairdo, well-proportioned and with no upward tilt, add height.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Dress "Up" To Look Taller

You can increase your height by optical illusion. Choose unbent vertical lines with an upward sweep that will convey all eyes in the same direction. But be sure those lines are in proportion with your measurements and body type. Not all vertical lines are slenderizing but all short girls—even those with petite figures—must guard against appearing wide and squat.

Narrow stripes, for example, are more slenderizing than wide stripes. The space between stripes must be reckoned, too, for its broadening effect. For the same reason, stocky five-footers should avoid long, full, waist-length sleeves.

Here are the basic principles to incorporate in clothes for the short figure:

1. Choose one color instead of a combination of contrasting shades. Keep to darker tones if you have a weight problem.

2. Dab with one-piece look in all your costumes, to eliminate "eyestoppers," horizontal lines that would cut off or distract attention away from the illusion of height, especially at the half-way point around the middle.

High-waisted or princess styles interpret the one-piece look best. In suits or co-ordinates, bolero or fitted jackets won't interrupt the illusion as a boxy or very long jacket might. Slim sweaters are better than bulky knits. (Note—I say slim, not tight. Let's not upset that important balance between the upper and lower anatomy.)

3. Dispose of details that drag the eyes down—and out! That means no pleats, tucks, pleats, oversize pockets, wide belts, big horizontal buckles and costume pieces, deep and spreading mushroom hat brims, long straight bangs, heavy flaring pageboys.

4. Leave the oversize splashy prints and bold plaids to the big girls. Remember my advice about reducing everything you wear to your own scale. The smaller your figure, the smaller the figure in your fabrics should be.

5. Whatever costume touches you add should be concentrated above the waistline, curved and calculated to LIFT you above your inches. Since there's less of you to carry any excess weight, a stay-slimmer diet is vital for your optical illusion to be carried out. But your proportions come first in deciding whether you really belong in petite or junior sizes or if the next larger regular size—shortened and taken in—might bring better balance to your frame.

Height alone can't answer this. Do you measure up? Find out by sending for my booklet of that title, addressing your request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper. Enclose 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Please allow two weeks for delivery.

All bricks used in Virginia during the 17th and 18th centuries seem to have been made there and not imported from England, according to some historians.

Local College Action Praised

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of Allegany County Board of Education, has expressed his personal thanks and that of the board to the County Commissioners for their action approving a community college program for Cumberland. He said surveys he has made indicated a majority of the citizens appreciate the plans to establish a college.

Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the commissioners, is checking into the legal matters pertaining to the expenditure of $30,000 by the county to start the college. He said he expects to have a decision at tomorrow's board meeting.

The CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 25 "One of the enigmas of the war has always been the question as to the refusal of the federal government to use a breech-loading rifle in large quantities," Francis A. Lord wrote. Dr. Lord is the author of a book, "They Fought for the Union" (pub. by Stackpole Co.), in which numerous questionable decisions in the Rebellion are discussed illuminatingly.

"Several efficient breech-loaders had been patented before April 1861, and it is not mere hindsight to insist that they should have been officially adopted. . . . The best breech-loading rifles, such as the Sharps and Spencer were only used in limited numbers and the Henry not at all."

The Army was staffed overwhelmingly in 1861 with volunteer officers. They reflected civilian prejudices against new weapons and tactics. This writer found in a widely circulated magazine of the 1860s a statement by "A Rocky Mountain hunter" that "There is no breech-loader that can or ever will be able to compete with a good muzzle-loader, either at target or for hunting."

When two regiments of special marksmen, the First and Second U. S., were formed in 1861, Col. Hiram Berdon officially requested Sharps rifles. The War Department insisted they be equipped with muzzle-loading Springfield. Only after Berdon went to President Lincoln, were Sharps rifles obtained for him. This created an ammunition supply problem, for the munitions industry had not developed to the point of mass production of shells for breech-loaders.—Clark Kinnaird.

Sharps rifle was the famous "Beecher's Bible" in the Kansas civil warfare, 1855-60.

The term "Sharpshooters" came from selected marksmen equipped with Sharp's rifle for special duty, as above—a sketch by a Civil War combat artist.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — "Operation Petticoat," which grossed close to $9,000,000, brought Cary Grant more attention than any comedy he ever made. Universal-International doesn't see why lightning can't strike twice in the same place, so in three weeks Cary and Doris Day, with Robert Arthur me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper. Enclose 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Please allow two weeks for delivery.

Gig Young, who has been in New York for months with "The Yum-Yum Tree," joins the cast as the third angle in the triangle. He plays the adviser to Cary, a nervous financier.

Marty Melcher and Stanley Shapiro are named executive producers and the movie starts in about three weeks at the U-I studio.

The very attractive brunette, Elaine Dunn, leading lady in "Bye, Bye, Birdie" at the Philharmonic, is going to be married in about two weeks to Dean Shendal, who is with Jack Entratter at the Sands Hotel. Elaine was formerly featured singer at the Sands Lounge, where she met her future bridegroom. Dean doesn't want a Las Vegas ceremony, so they will be married in Los Angeles next weekend.

Elaine is well known on Broadway and she also played the lead in the national company of "Flower Drum Song." She was previously married to Allan Jeffreys, by whom she has a small son.

These youngsters do grow up—Darryl Hickman is writing and producing his first motion picture called "The Man Who Never Smiled." Darryl is very familiar with this story, since it was first done by him as a teleplay for the Loretta Young show. It was acted by Ricardo Montalban, who will also star in the motion picture.

The story is about a padre in Bogota, Colombia, who had the citizens donate a penny a day to help the poor people.

I wish I had saved all the adjectives I have used through the years on less deserving motion pictures for "The Guns of Navarone." Carl Foreman's great, great film. Just as the late Harry Cohan predicted that "Bridge on the River Kwai" would come in for many academy awards, I'm sure that "The Guns of Navarone," filmed on the Island of Rhodes, is sure of many academy nominations.

Not only are the performances uniformly excellent but the director, J. Lee Thompson, deserves a bow for the spectacularly beautiful scenes.

This isn't a one man picture. Gregory Peck as the leader of the group which is assigned to blow up a Greek island where the nazis have stored tremendous guns; David Niven, as the whimsical genius with high explosives, brooding, revengeful Anthony Quinn; Anthony Quayle as the popular major; Stanley Baker as the butcher of Barcelona; James Darren as the baby-faced killer, all deserve praise as do the two girls, Irene Papas and Gia Scala. There is no real love story in

Civil Service Unit, County To Meet

Allegany County Board of Commissioners and the Civil Service Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. to confer on several matters of mutual interest.

Two matters to be discussed will be the setting up of a qualification test for an administrative assistant with the Civil Defense organization under Civil Service regulations and the proposed new salary scale for county employees which has been set up on the basis of a survey conducted recently.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Poor Jeff Chandler had a new setback after he underwent surgery for the third time. There is still recurrence of internal bleeding.

In spite of the fact that Glenn Dailey has filed suit for divorce from Dan it's said they have not been able to arrive at a property settlement. She is currently visiting at Malibu.

Susan Kohner, who is traveling on the continent with her parents, the Paul Kohners, arrived in Rome just a day after her beau, George Hamilton, left. This looks as if all is not smooth sailing, romantically speaking.

The new haircut Rhonda Fleming is sporting is for her role in "Marriage-Go-Round." She plays the wife of the professor and opens in summer stock in Philadelphia June 26.

Looks like Helen Noga, discoverer of Johnny Mathis, has another singing find in 17-year-old crooner Mike Clifford. He made his TV debut last Sunday.

The whole Rogers and Cowan clan—Warren, John Foreman and Beebe Kline—were with Kathryn Grayson while she was being fitted at Don Loper's for her costumes for her concert tour.

Pat Boone's nightclub act at the Coconut Grove, which closed Wednesday night, proves that people do like the wholesome type songs.

A long distance call from Gene Brown, manager of the Marlow Theatre in Helena, Mont., pleading for some stars to attend the premiere June 28 of Gary Cooper's last picture "Naked Edge," the proceeds of which go to cancer research.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q 1—As South you hold:
 ♠ J 2 ♥ A K 6 4 3 ♦ 7 5 ♣ A K J 2
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
 2 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Three hearts. Although partner's bidding does not promise substantial values, one more try is indicated. His spade suit may develop enough diamonds to produce a game.

Q 2—As South you hold:

♠ A 6 ♥ K Q J 10 5 3 ♦ 6 5 ♣ A J 8
 East, your right hand opponent, has opened with one diamond.
 What is your bid?

A—Double. This is the type of hand that was formerly described by a jump overall. However that bid is now employed to show a hand containing a good suit with little high card strength. Since a mere overall would be grossly inadequate it is necessary to double first and then bid an appropriate number of hearts on the next round.

Q 3—As South you hold:

♠ 7 ♥ K J 10 5 4 ♦ A Q 10 9 ♣ Q J 10
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
 5 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Although you have an absolute maximum raise, North's slam invitation must be declined for it is clear that the partnership is off two aces. North had a reasonable opportunity to show the ace of spades or the ace of clubs and his failure to do so is indication that he has neither.

Q 4—As South you hold:

♠ Q 10 2 ♥ 8 7 5 ♦ K 7 5 4 3 ♣ Q 10
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A—Pass. Despite the fact that you have a spade stopper and have previously passed, you do not have sufficient for a free bid.

Q 5—As South you hold:

♠ K J 10 8 4 ♥ K Q 8 2 ♦ Q 6 4 ♣ K
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 2 NT Pass ?

What is your rebid?

A—Three hearts. Despite the fact that your hand is aces and your partner has previously passed you should take further action. An effort should be made to steer the contract into a major suit. Our second choice would be three no trump. We would give no consideration to a pass.

Q 6—As South you hold:

♠ 4 ♥ A 6 2 ♦ 10 9 8 6 5 4 2 ♣ 6 3
 East South West North
 3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What do you bid?

A—Five diamonds. This is a safe and sound procedure. We would not accept the double because there is a grave danger that the contract would be fulfilled, particularly if partner has some high diamonds. Furthermore, it is not at all remote that a contract of five diamonds could be fulfilled. In any case, the loss from such action could hardly be serious.

Q 7—As South you hold:

♠ 6 ♥ 8 5 3 ♦ J 4 3 ♠ A Q 10 9 6 4
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 Pass Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♥

What action do you take?

A—Pass. No thought should be given to a bid of three clubs. If your partner bids spades again you can then mention your suit.

Q 8—As South you hold:

♠ K Q J 7 3 ♥ 10 7 4 ♦ 9 5 3 ♣ 7 2
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♠ Dbl 4 ♠

What action do you take?

A—Four spades. This involves slight risk but you cannot afford to be shut out. The bidding makes it clear that partner is very short in diamonds.

Ann Landers ...

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm completely baffled and I need a word or two from you.

I'm 23, a college graduate (male) and I work in an office. There are a few cute chicks around here, and one in particular has caught my eye. She is interestingly aloof and I know for certain that a few guys have tried to date her but failed to score.

I asked her out last Friday night and she accepted. We had a great time and when we got to the door of her apartment I said matter-of-factly, "I wonder what it would be like to kiss you. This is no pass, just an experiment."

She replied, "Look, Thomas Edison, I can tell you what it would be like. Great. Now goodbye." Then she shoved me aside and shut the door.

Have I been rejected? Frankly this has never happened before. What's the score?

S.K.

DEAR THOMAS EDISON: The score is one to nothing—in HER favor. Any more questions?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 34, divorced, no children and self-supporting. Friends consider me a better-than-average looking and fun to be with. For the past three years I've been going with a man who claims to be separated from his wife although he lives at home. He never mentions his family and says home is where he changes clothes and gets his laundry done—nothing more.

I never see him on weekends or holidays. He says he can't introduce me to his business friends or relatives so I miss out on many nice social events. When I mention marriage he asks me to be patient.

Please don't tell me this is a run of the mill triangle. This is different. We are very much in love. This man has looks, money and social position. I'd hate to lose him because I didn't have the sense to wait just a little longer. What's your opinion?

—GREY SKIES

DEAR GREY SKIES: You're color blind. The skies are black and the ceiling is zero. Sorry, this is a run of the mill triangle. Toots. They ALL say they're in love.

No matter how you rationalize, it adds up to the same dreary plot: married man—foolish woman—back-street affair—wasted years. Stop seeing the two-timer while you're still "better-than-average looking and fun to be with." A few more years of this routine could find you permanently socked in.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a high school senior who is dating a swell fellow. There's one thing about him that makes me uncomfortable. He bites his fingernails way down to the cuticle. This is not an exaggeration. His nails are so chewed up that his fingers look almost deformed.

He's self-conscious about it and hides his hands as much as possible. Should I tell him that I would be very happy if he overcame this ugly habit? Would that help? Please advise me. I'll do as you say.

—MIMI

DEAR MIMI: Nail-biting is a symptom of unresolved emotional problems. It would not help if you asked him to stop. Nail-biters are driven by compulsions beyond their control. The boy needs more than a word from you. Let's hope that he gets it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LIKE MISERABLE: It figures. If you're interested in the long haul, don't take any more short trips.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SOBBING SAL: Sorry, I agree with your mother. A turtle does not belong in the family bathtub.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ON MY KNEES: Well, get off, you'll ruin your pants. I refuse to be a patcher-upper for a guy who abuses women time after time then tries to get a third party to fix everything.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teen-agers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WIFE PRESERVERS

For small sifting jobs like dusting cakes with confectioner's sugar, use a small, fine-meshed sieve, stirring material through it with a spoon. This saves muss while you're still "better-than-average looking and fun to be with." A few more years of this routine could find you permanently socked in.

Centuries ago in Europe, gentlemen who were heavy drinkers had personal drinking cups that they took to the tavern each night and they to their graves when they died.

An agreement was approved on Friday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for the operation of the county farm property by Clarence Warnick.

The agreement lists the manner in which Warnick will operate the farm, principally the cattle which he will maintain on the farm. The county farm will also be used to raise several dozen pigs. Various crops will also be grown.

Flood Control Crews Cutting Grass On Levees

Turf Must Be Kept In Top Condition

The grass is fresh and green on the levees and easement areas here of the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood protection project.

It is kept that way for the very practical reason that a good stand of grass is the best way to prevent erosion on the sloping banks of the earthen levees.

The fact that the superbly kept areas provide a touch of beauty usually found only in suburban areas is just an extra dividend.

In all, there are some 38 acres of land in grass on the levees and about 30 acres are located on the sloping levees which protect West Cumberland and Ridgeley from Potomac River floods.

The flood control maintenance crew is working on the second mowing of the levees and expects to finish the job this week if weather permits.

Roy Maphis, flood control foreman, said it takes eight working days for the five-man crew to cut the entire area.

Work on the levees is speeded by the use of power mowers with six-foot blades. Two 24-inch rotary mowers are used to cut grass in the ditches and along easement areas.

Grass on the levees must be cut three or four times a year, depending on the amount of rain, but ditches must be mowed twice that often so they will drain well.

In addition to the mowing, crews are constantly inspecting the turf.

Worn spots must be fertilized and seeded, and steps taken to discourage the growth of weeds.

The flood control crew has been taking advantage of the sludge from the sewage treatment plant, which is useful as a soil conditioner when properly cured.

Car Crashes Into Dwelling In Ridgeley

No Injuries Noted In Multiple Wreck

No injuries were reported early yesterday morning when a car struck a parked automobile, went out of control and then crashed its way into the living room of a Ridgeley home 70 feet away.

The accident occurred on Main Street about 1 a.m. after a car occupied by Jack Edward Redman, 24, Baltimore, and James E. Eisentrout, 21, Ridgeley, sideswiped a car owned by Tressie O. Cassell, Ridgeley, and parked at 154 Main Street.

Ridgeley Police Chief Lawrence Y. Chandler said the car then went about 70 feet before it crashed into the front of the home of Alvin Adams at 157 Main Street.

The vehicle, he said, stopped near where Mr. Adams had been sitting watching television only 15 minutes before the crash.

The police chief said Redman is being held in the Ridgeley jail pending the completion of an investigation.

He said Redman, who has no driver's license, denies that he was operating the car. The owner, Eisentrout, told Ridgeley police that Redman was driving, and that he (Eisentrout) was asleep in the back seat when the crash occurred.

Chief Chandler said witnesses said Redman was in the driver's seat and Eisentrout in the back. Patrolman Fred Fisher assisted in the investigation.

1,761 Vehicles Inspected In Second Safety Check

Driver participation in the second annual auto safety check to be held in Cumberland surpassed last year's program by 427, according to final tabulations.

A total of 1,761 vehicles were inspected in the six city lanes and the two lanes operated by the Kelly-

Springfield Tire Company, according to figures announced by Lynn Walker, coordinator of the free inspection, which was a joint project of the Cumberland Optimist Club and Cumberland Chapter 377, Safe-Ten Inc.

The response to the invitation to "take five minutes to safety-check the mechanical condition of your car" was gratifying, Mr. Walker said. He declared it shows an increased awareness among local car owners of individual responsibility for preventing accidents.

Comparison of the scores in the two years' programs shows the growing importance of a safe vehicle, Mr. Walker said.

In 1960, 1,334 vehicles were inspected. In 1961 the total was 1,761, including a number of Celanese Central Trucking Division tractors, Post Office trucks, city and county vehicles.

In 1960, 31 per cent of the vehicles checked failed to pass because of mechanical defects. This year the percentage of rejections was only 9.6 — far below the national average of 20 per cent.

Last year, 25 per cent of the failed vehicles came back with defects corrected and were passed. This year, 36 per cent of the rejections came back and passed.

Lane captains were instructed to ask car owners to express their feelings toward the inspection program, and their answers showed the reason for the wide difference in the 1960 and 1961 records.

Most car owners said they had made sure their cars would pass by having needed work done before going to the check lanes.

W. Lester Hudson and Willis L. Wilson, co-chairmen of the 1961 "Operation Take 5," expressed appreciation for the time and effort devoted to the program by many industrial and business firms of the city.

Preliminary plans for the 1962 program will be started soon, and area car owners will hear the familiar invitation next spring: "Join the Circle of Safety — check your car — check your driving — check accidents."

Suburban Area Populations In New Report

Many Sections Show Rapid Expansion

LaVale, largest unincorporated area in Allegany County, has nearly doubled its population in the last ten years.

Cresaptown has more people than Mt. Savage, and Potomac Park is close behind them.

These are a few of the population facts included in a newly published study of census figures by the Maryland State Planning Department.

Included, besides the usual census figures for counties, cities and towns, are population lists for every election district in Maryland, plus special sections on populations of cities and unincorporated areas as defined by local usage.

For instance, Election District 29 in Allegany County, which includes LaVale, has 5,399 people. But the report also shows that "LaVale-Narrows Park" has 4,031. This provides a useful itemization of neighborhood populations in cases where the election districts cover more than one neighborhood.

Allegany Ranks Sixth

Allegany County, with a population of 84,169 in the 1960 census, ranks sixth in size among Maryland's 23 counties. Larger are Baltimore County, Prince Georges, Montgomery, Anne Arundel and Washington counties, in that order.

The most recent census gave Washington County 91,219, and Hagerstown 36,660, thus placing Hagerstown in the position of second largest city in Maryland, ahead of Cumberland, which has 33,415 persons.

But the tremendous postwar growth of suburban areas in Maryland is shown by the fact that five unincorporated towns are larger than Hagerstown or Cumberland.

Biggest of these is Dundalk in Baltimore County, with 82,428. Others are Silver Spring, Bethesda and Wheaton, all in Montgomery County, and Catonsville in Baltimore County. Essex, in Baltimore County, is between Hagerstown and Cumberland in size, with a population of 35,205.

Only three counties—Baltimore, Montgomery and Washington — have any towns as large as Cumberland. Although Prince Georges County has 357,395 persons and Anne Arundel has 206,634, neither has a town the size of Cumberland. Nearest in size is Annapolis, with 23,385.

City "Bigger" Than 10 Counties

As a matter of fact, there are 10 counties in Maryland whose whole populations are smaller than that of the city of Cumberland alone. These are Charles and Calvert counties in Southern Maryland, Garrett County to the west, and Dorchester, Worcester, Talbot, Somerset, Caroline, Queen Anne's and Kent, all on the Eastern Shore.

So small in population are some of Maryland's counties that any two of the smallest three — Queen Anne's, Calvert and Kent — if taken together, still would not equal the population of Cumberland. To surpass the population of Allegany County, you'd have to take all three of them, plus the two next largest counties, Somerset and Caroline.

Figures for Allegany and Garrett counties are listed below. The complete report can be obtained for a dollar from the State Planning Department at 1103 State Office Building, Baltimore 1. It's designated Publication No. 113.
